Growing tomorrow's leaders, through education, is unequivocally, the best investment in a better future for many deeply challenged countries and the best way to help bring about world peace.

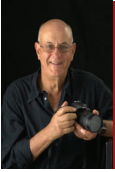

We have partnered with three reputable and successful organizations, run by American entrepreneur / philanthropists, that work in rural Asia. 100% of the gross profits from the sale of this book will be paid to one or more of these organizations:

READ Global Founded by Toni Neubauer in 1991, the READ model partners for-profit business enterprises with non-profit Community Library and Resource Centers (READ Centers). The organization has helped establish forty nine Community Library and Resource Centers paired with for-profit enterprises throughout Nepal, India and now Bhutan that serve over a half million people annually.

American Assistance for Cambodia Founded in 1993, AAC has helped construct more than 400 primary and lower secondary schools in rural Cambodia. The school in Siem Riep featured in this book was built by AAC with fundraising undertaken by Todd and Kara Alexander of Martha's Vineyard.

Central Asia Institute's work was started in 1993 by Greg Mortensen (Three Cups of Tea). As of 2009, Central Asia Institute has successfully established 130 schools in Pakistan and Afghanistan, which provide (or have provided) education to over 51,000 students, with an emphasis on girls' education. A few additional projects have been in Mongolia (rural health education) and Kyrgyzstan (teacher training scholarships).

“ The contentment and joy that go along with western ideas of Nirvana seem to exist in some abundance in worlds in which most of us would never choose to live”

WHY THIS BOOK?

- To enable inhabitants of other countries to be more visible in a new and positive light.
- To break stereotypes. Too often, we travel the world with unrealistic expectations.
- To demonstrate that, through individual action, transformation of the world is possible.
- To appreciate, that while governments and political cycles come and go, on an individual level much of the world still admires and respects western democracy. They look up to us. As long as we're not telling them what to do, we have the potential to be effective role models.

Touched by what we have seen in Indochina through our camera lenses, we raise money to help identify, liberate, rehabilitate, and educate children.

By supporting the work of trusted local people, our goal is to help create societies, wherein children are free from exploitation and receive free, quality education.

100% of the gross profits from the sale of this book will go towards educational projects in Myanmar (Burma), Cambodia and Nepal.
